Important information concerning the use of HTI's Special Collection Anticoagulant Tubes (SCAT line of products).

Special precautions for the use of ALL SCAT blood collection tubes:

The SCAT series of sample collection tubes are to be used for investigational research applications only. They must not be used for in-vitro diagnostic applications. Although the SCAT tubes may resemble standard phlebotomy collection tubes, it should be noted that these tubes are NOT STERILE. DO NOT USE THESE TUBES FOR BLOOD COLLECTION VIA DIRECT PHLEBOTOMY UNLESS done with a catheter of at least five inches (12.7 cm) in length, which is equipped with a multi-sample luer adapter (MSLA). This will eliminate the possibility of back-flush from the non-sterile tube to the sample donor.

IMPORTANT PRECAUTIONARY STATEMENT

Warning: All formulations of SCAT blood collection tubes are NOT STERILE. These tubes are for investigational use only. They are not to be used for diagnostic or treatment purposes. Tests that are performed on blood or plasma from these tubes must not be used for diagnostic or treatment purposes. Use these tubes only as directed.

Proper Use: Read all of the information above before using SCAT tubes as well as any information provided with the tubes themselves. Haematologic Technologies, Inc. shall not be held responsible for complications arising due to the misuse of SCAT tubes.

Note: Any failure of the purchaser and/or end user to properly use this series of products shall operate as a waiver of any stated warranty. There are no warranties that extend beyond the description of the face hereof.
